

End Range of Motion Improvement (ERMI), Inc. has been approved by the Florida Department of Education, Division of Vocational Rehabilitation to become a Certified Vocational Rehabilitation Vendor in the State of Florida

Thursday October 30, 2008 2:30 EST

October 30, 2008 Atlanta, Georgia. ERMI, Inc., the leader in mechanical therapy for post-operative motion loss, has been approved to become a certificated vocational rehabilitation vendor with the Florida Department of Education, Division of Vocational Rehabilitation through October 30, 2010.

Patients needing mechanical therapy devices from the Florida Department of Education, Division of Vocational Rehabilitation will be granted access to ERMI's devices when motion loss is diagnosed and mechanical therapy required for restoring joint motion.

ERMI, Inc. was founded in 1990 with the goal of developing non-surgical treatment alternatives for patients suffering from post-operative motion loss. Today ERMI, Inc.'s devices have been used to treat over 20,000 patients, and now include mechanical therapy devices for the knee, ankle, elbow, shoulder and great toe.

The Florida Department of Education, Division of Vocational Rehabilitation is a Federal/State Program that assists individuals with disabilities who require vocational rehabilitation services to prepare for, secure, regain or retain employment. The Division of Vocational Rehabilitation is committed to working with partners to provide quality vocational rehabilitation services to persons with disabilities in Florida.

For more information, please contact Cameron McCaa at 404-687-0505 or go to www.GetMotion.com